Request for Immediate Resolution of Payment Hold
Date: June 2, 2025

Dear Claims Administrator:

I am writing regarding the unexplained hold on Mr. Golub's unemployment insurance benefits. Mr. Golub has been approved for benefits totaling $6,097.00 ($469.00 weekly for 13 weeks) but has received no payments despite filing all required weekly claims and job search documentation for the past two weeks.

The online system indicates an issue preventing payment, citing "discharged" and "not provide information" as concerns. I am writing to address these issues directly and request immediate release of the benefits owed to Mr. Golub.

First, regarding the discharge issue:

Mr. Golub was NOT discharged for misconduct. His separation from Granite School District was the culmination of philosophical differences regarding educational methods and his advocacy for educational reform, including the integration of AI tutoring systems to address the district's documented literacy crisis. While the district may characterize the separation differently, there was no misconduct, no violation of law or policy, and certainly no behavior that would disqualify him from unemployment benefits under Utah law.

The incident cited by the district—students conducting a brief dance activity after completing a Spanish test—was a classroom management decision made in the moment and hardly constitutes dischargeable misconduct. The students wanted to dance, and Mr. Golub let them as they had completed their test.

The more serious allegation of using the f-word is also not reason for dismissal, as Mr. Golub had used it in reference to himself not a student. This was regrettable but seeing as how long-term teachers regularly yell at students and use far more conduct toward students, this is not the type of offense that would warrant a discharge.

Unfortunately, Mr. Golub no longer has access to his Granite School email or profile, but it should be noted that multiple students wrote to the district with letters of praise, citing Mr. Golub's unprecedented attention to education and, perhaps more importantly in this context, respect for students who are regularly referred to as "unteachable" and "lost" by long-term faculty who are "burned out." Mr. Golub was not burned out and continues to be passionate about public education. This passion should be commended not penalized.

Second, regarding information not provided:

Mr. Golub has submitted all requested documentation through your online portal. If additional information is required, your office has failed to specify what is needed. This lack of communication while continuing to require weekly filings without payment is unacceptable and potentially violates Utah's unemployment insurance regulations requiring timely determinations.

Therefore, I request the following immediate actions:

1. Release all pending benefit payments immediately, as no valid reason for withholding benefits has been established.
2. If benefits cannot be released immediately, provide within 48 hours a detailed written explanation of:
    - Exactly what information or documentation is required
    - The specific statutory or regulatory basis for withholding benefits
    - A clear timeline for resolution
    - The appeals process if benefits are denied
3. Confirm receipt of this correspondence and provide a direct contact for resolution of this matter.

Mr. Golub has met all eligibility requirements: he lost his job through no fault of his own, he is able and available for work, and he is actively seeking employment (exceeding the four weekly applications required). He has two advanced degrees from Columbia and Berkeley and devoted two years to attempting to improve educational outcomes for underserved students in your state. He deserves the benefits he has earned.

The Department's continued delay in payment while requiring ongoing compliance with filing requirements is causing significant financial hardship. Utah law requires prompt payment of benefits to eligible claimants. Each day of delay compounds the harm to Mr. Golub.

I trust this matter will receive your immediate attention. Should you require any additional documentation or clarification, please directly respond to this correspondence or contact Mr. Golub at 801-618-7609. We are prepared to provide any reasonable documentation to expedite this process.

However, absent a legitimate basis for withholding benefits, which has not been provided, we expect immediate release of all benefits owed.

Respectfully submitted,
Peter Golub
